STATE NEWS.

Aroostook.

A little boy of Geo. Rice, of Presque Isle, was quite severely injured on Wednesday, by being struck in the stomach by a bat stick that slipped out of the hands of a play mate. The little fellow was rendered unconscious by the blow for some minutes. We are glad to learn that he is expected to come around all right.

On the third day of May it was good sleighing from Aroostook Bridge to Caribou, the snow being four feet deep in some places. On the 9th of May farmers were sowing wheat between these points. On the 3d day of June, grain was well started, and in many places the grass was so high and thick that it had begun to lodge.

Stage driver Stone met with quite a serious accident on Tuesday. As he was coming down a hill this side of Monticello Creek, says the North Star, the forward wheel of the stage coach struck the end of a large log in the wheel track and threw him from his seat. He struck on his face, and the wheel nearly severed one of his ears. A physician was called, his wounds dressed, and we understand that he is recovering.

Cumberland.

Friday forenoon at low tide, three young men working around the Cape shore this side of Portland Light, uncovered an ancient style iron cannon, known as a "six-pounder." It was drawn up from its resting place, but the rising waters forced them to leave it on the rocks, where they secured it and removed the relic Saturday. Mr. Strout, the veteran keeper of Portland Light says that over a century ago a British gunboat was wrecked in that vicinity, and this cannon is doubtless a part of her armament.

The attention of agent Sawyer, of Portland, was called to a peculiar case Friday evening. Mrs. J. P. Shattuck, of Deering, was driving out of the city when she observed that she was being followed by a large St. Bernard dog. When she drove into her door-yard the dog still trotted behind. She had a dog with her, and possibly this was the reason why the St. Bernard followed. She called to her husband to drive the animal away. Mr. Shattuck at once fired on the dog with his shot-gun, putting out its eyes, but not killing it. The owner, Mr. B. A. Hallett, of Portland, learned of the shooting, and called Agent Sawyer. The poor animal was in due time put out of its misery.

Franklin.

The biggest trout ever caught from the Rangeley waters was landed on Tuesday by Dr. S. J. Mixter, a Boston gentleman. The trout weighed 11¾ pounds, and measured 29 inches in length, and was caught off Sandy Point, Mooselucmeguntic Lake.

Coombs, of Lewiston, is preparing the plans for the new Old South church at Farmington, and will have them ready by July 1st. The church will front on Main street about 92 feet, with a depth of about 86 feet; built of brick with towers at northeast and southeast corners, and will seat about 450 people. The vestry will be at the south end of the church, separated by glass doors, and will seat 250.

Hancock.

The Knights of Labor, at Bar Harbor, are putting up a large hall on School street. A new Baptist church is being erected on Ledge Lawn Avenue. The St. Silvia's church has undergone several alterations, so that it will comfortably seat 500 people.

The Mt. Desert Herald says Mr. Sullivan Green, who died recently at Green's Landing, Deer Isle, used to take passengers back and forth from the steamer Rockland in a boat, landing them at his wharf; hence the name of Green's Landing came to be applied not only to the landing place, but in time to the village which afterwards sprung up there.

Kennebec.

Mr. C. B. Cobb, of Augusta, sold his handsome span of bay horses to Mr. Chas. Barnard, of Boston, Wednesday, for $1,200.

A Canadian on Monday afternoon, drove into Waterville, a large Newfoundland dog attached to a small two wheeled cart which the faithful animal had hauled inside of three days from a town in Canada, a distance of 150 miles.

There were only two bids offered for the construction of the new school building at Waterville, and both were above the appropriation. At a conference between the lowest bidders and the selectmen, the plans were somewhat modified, and the contract finally awarded to J. & J. Philbrook and Farinton Bros. for $11,617.

It has been decided that the excursion of the Maine Press Association this year will be to points of interest in New Hampshire and Vermont, leaving Portland July 11th and being absent a week. It is so costly, however, that it is doubtful if many go from Augusta.

The Augusta people got a taste of Fourth of July festivities last year and they are bound to continue the indulgence this coming Fourth, even if not as extensive as last. At the earnest request of a number of citizens several of the committee on last year's celebration have consented to attempt a celebration on a small scale the coming Fourth of July. We learn that an informal meeting has been held and that the subject received considerable attention.

Kennebec County Pomona Grange will meet with Readfield Grange, Wednesday, June 15, at ten o'clock. The following is the lecturer's programme as announced at the last meeting: Morning session will open promptly at 10.30. Subject for discussion, "Effects of the credit system on farmers and farming." Speakers: Thing, and True of Fayette; True, of Litchfield, H. S. Smith. Afternoon session, essays by sisters Tuttle and Keith. Discussion, "Reasons why every farmer should be a member of the order." Speakers: Meader, Watson, Jones, Savage, Yeaton.

Lawrence Bros. of South Gardiner, have quite a curiosity in the shape of a quarter of a pine log which was cut and hauled in the year of 1840, March 4, the day that President Harrison was inaugurated, says the Reporter. The log had to be blown open with powder before it could be got out of the stream where it was put in, and has lay out to the mill with logs that have come down this spring. Mr. Henry Fogg, one of the oldest lumbermen on the river, says he was there when the log was cut and hauled, and it took twelve oxen to haul it. He said they had a great time with a log roller, it took the stream and broke it in the "hay flower." The quarter measures six feet and is said to be one of the largest, if not the largest, pine ever cut in Maine. Chas. Lewis, or "Lew" Charles more widely known, has had a hand in logs when they were cut. Mr. Fogg says the party took dinner on the top of the stump, had a good time and plenty to wash the dinner down with.

Knox.

The Rockland Free Press says: The Lewiston Journal has a Rockland correspondence which exaggerates about one hundred fold the excitement and alarm in this city over the recent operations of an incendiary. It is simply ridiculous.

The Hurricane Granite Company was notified Monday, the 6th, of the acceptance of the proposal for furnishing the granite trimmings for the northern section of the new Suffolk county court house, to be built at Pemberton Square, Boston. $16,000 was the amount of the contract. Work will be commenced immediately. About two hundred men will be given employment. The benefits from such an undertaking are many, and greatly increase the business outlook for that vicinity.

Lincoln.

The Pemaquid Messenger reports that while three little girls were being hauled about on a pair of wheels that had just been used for hauling lumber, a little girl of E. P. Tukey's got her hand caught between the wheel and a chain, crushing the ends of two of her fingers. Her thumb nail was crushed off and one finger burst open. Had the boy hauling them been larger, her whole hand would probably have been crushed.

Oxford.

Mr. D. Varney Young, of West Paris, aged about sixty-two years, fell while coming from his room to the dining-room, Friday afternoon, and died a few minutes afterwards. Three weeks ago or more Mr. Young had a shock of paralysis of the right side, losing the use of his leg, arm and speech. From this he had partially recovered the use of his limbs, but not his speech. Last Sunday he took cold and from that time had not been so well. A few minutes before his death a friend called on him and he laughed heartily at the fishing experience related by his friend.

Piscataquis.

At a meeting held Thursday evening by the Dover and Foxcroft Fire Corporation, it was unanimously voted to allow the Dover & Foxcroft Water Company a change in the original contract in regard to crossing the Piscataquis River; also a change of the location of the reservoir. The reasons for so doing were plainly stated by Hon. H. M. Heath, of Augusta, in behalf of the Water Company. It was proposed in the original contract to cross the river upon Foxcroft bridge but upon careful inspection it was found to be unsafe for the purpose, in consequence the Water Company asked the privilege of crossing upon the bed of the river above Mayo's dam. The contract stated as regards the reservoir that it should be 185 feet above Union Square, and the location fixed upon was Ryder Hill. It was discovered upon subsequent examination that the only place on the hill to get that height was exceedingly ledgey and of a poor shelly nature, so the company asked a reduction of 10 feet to insure a safe bottom for a reservoir.

Sagadahoc.

Last Friday evening Mr. Ellis Sedgley called at the office of Dr. C. W. Price, bearing in his arms a four-months-old baby that appeared to be in great distress, says the Richmond Bee. A small red spot was discovered on the child's abdomen, and whenever the spot was touched, the little one screamed in agony. It was found necessary to chloroform the subject, and the surgeon cut through the abdominal wall, finding a small-sized darning needle embedded in the infant's liver. The baby is now well.

Waldo.

The Masons are building a large hall in Searsmont. The first floor will be occupied by stores. On the second floor there will be a large public hall and ante rooms. On the third floor will be the Masonic hall, with several small rooms for Masonic purposes.

At a meeting of citizens of Belfast, last week, S. L. Milliken, W. H. Fogler and C. W. Haney were appointed to take measures to form a soldiers' monument association and to report at a future meeting. About $1,600 have been raised toward building a monument.

The Belfast Journal says: The United States coast and geodetic survey steamer Gedney, Lieut. F. H. Crosby commanding, arrived in our harbor on Monday, for the purpose of completing, or as they term it, patching up the survey of the Penobscot river. The work to be done will occupy but a few days. A ledge on the eastern shore between the mouth of the Penobscot river and Castine, and another off Sandy Point, will be examined and the steamer will then proceed to the St. Croix where an extended survey will be made. The Gedney is a screw steamer of 133 tons, and well fitted for the work in which she is engaged. The officers are: Lieut. F. H. Crosby, commanding; Ensign A. W. Dodd, executive officer; Ensign N. J. Helpine; W. S. Cresby, Recorder. The ship's company comprises eighteen men.

Washington.

Rev. Mr. Whitcomb, pastor of the Washington street Baptist church, in Eastport, has resigned. It is understood that Mr. Whitcomb will supply the pulpits at South Robbinston and North Perry.

Mr. Fred Hall, of Calais, says the Advertiser, went up to Union Mills, last Friday evening, to try his hand at salmon trolling. It seems there is a pool a short distance from the entrance to the fishway, through which all the salmon on their way up the river have to pass. This pool, it is claimed, Mr. Frank Todd, of St. Stephen, has exclusive right to by virtue of a license from the Dominion Government. So Mr. Hall was told by one of the game association, that he had better not fish there, as he would leave himself liable to prosecution. Mr. Hall told the gentleman that he was going to fish right in that pool, and that he might go right down to St. Stephens and so inform Mr. Todd of the fact. And if he wished, he might bring an officer and arrest him. So Mr. Hall proceeded to the business in hand and in a short time hooked and landed a ten and a half pound beauty. We saw him going up to try the pool again, Monday evening. It must be very gratifying to the people on this side of the St. Croix to know that they are taxed to propagate salmon and other fish in it for the exclusive pleasure and benefit of a few individuals.

June Magazines.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR JUNE. The new number of St. Nicholas opens with a charming frontispiece by Frank Russell Green, entitled A Day Dream. It reminds us that summer is at hand; and Frank Dempster Sherman's poem, June, leaves no doubt upon the subject.

Those who intend going abroad will not skip Frank R. Stockton's delightful Ting London; while the stay-at-homes will read it, and be able to give points to the travelers on their return. After perusing Mrs. Poultney Bigelow's Story of a Lost Dog, however, it may strike the reader that, if stray animals are so well taken care of in London, it will be quite unnecessary for humans to know their way about.

Though the musical season is supposed now to have ended, we learn by Elizabeth's Concert that it has just begun—at least for those who spend their vacation in the country. But, while all boys and girls are ready for vacation at this time, some must be getting ready for business; to these George J. Manson's article on A Banker and Broker will prove very interesting. Curiously enough, there are some young men who will camp out this summer by way of getting ready for business—they are the West Point cadets, and we will in camp is capitally described in Winning a Commission, by Lieutenant Gerald H. Morgan; while General Adam Badeau shows what an unpleasant business it may be in his stirring paper on Sheridan in the Valley.

The story of The Child-Princess, Charlotte, is cleverly told by Ellen M. Hutchinson, and there are some in a quiet vein in Editorials. Notes about another sketch maiden, Grizel Cochrane, whose story was told in the February number. Juan and Juanita and Jenny's Boarding-house grow better as they grow older; the Brownies have an adventure with a bee-hive, and there is a great deal more than there is room to tell of.

The June WIDE AWAKE with its tempting frontispiece, The First Day at the Beach, opens with a stirring story, The Chase of the Meteor. To keep company with the frontispiece, is a delightful pictorial vacation paper, by Amanda B. Harris, Down in Sandwich Town. But the great feature of the number is, of course, the opening of the new serial by Charles Egbert Craddock; The Story of Keedon Bluffs was designed for ten numbers, but it has been resolved to give the story entire in five or six numbers; consequently fourteen pages are devoted to it in this issue. Mrs. Mollie Moore Davis in her La Rose Blanche story, A New Dog, gives a graphic picture of a great crevasse in war-times, when only the women and negroes of the plantation were left to fight the wild muddy waters. Miss Guiney in her Fairy Folk All writes of little Water-People, Grace Denio Litchfield writes an account of her experience at Mentone in the late earthquake; Mrs. Parsons in Patty's Cabbages tells a true story of the Western Grasshopper plague, and how a little girl begun her fortune; Mr. Hopkins in A Young Prince of Commerce tells how a young Bank President got his first instructions; Mr. Holder describes some Bird Sentinels; Susan Power tells the girls how to make a summer cottage cosey and restful; Mrs. Bolton writes of the success of a woman-florist in Ohio; and Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Mrs. Harriett Prescott Spofford, Clinton Scollard and Gertrude Hall have fine poems.

Wide Awake is $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

The June number of the ECLECTIC has an attractive table of contents, which indicates both strength and variety. Prof. Huxley has the place of honor in a paper entitled Science and Pseudo Science, which severely attacks the Duke of Argyle. Carl Rosa discusses English opera most entertainingly, and Robert Louis Stevenson, in his article, The Day after To-morrow, attempts to show what would be the result, should Henry Georgeism or Socialism be victorious. H. D. Traill contributes a suggestive discussion of the uses of Parliament. The author of John Halifax talks very sensibly about the marriage relation and divorce under the head of For Better or Worse. Fluctuation in Trade and Wages, by George Howell, The Decline of the Drama, by Harry Quilter, and The Making of Britain, by Archibald Geikie, are all articles of noticeable interest. Baron Tennyson contributes a jubilee poem, Carmen Seculare, and Sir Theodore Martin gives a new version of Schiller's Song of the Bell. There are other short papers of interest, and a capital short story, The Romance of a French Parsonage.

Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single numbers, 15 cents; trial subscription for 3 months, $1. Eclectic and any $4 Magazine, $8.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for June has a steel-engraving, handsome colored fashion plate, and numerous wood-cuts even above the usual average of excellence, and, regarded from a literary point of view, this number, both in the matter of tales and poetry, is more than ordinarily rich and varied. The illustrated story, Dick Lacey's Choice, is charmingly told, and Mrs. Sherwood's interesting serial, The Professor's Daughter, closes in a dramatic and satisfactory manner. A new volume begins with the July number, affording a good opportunity to subscribe or to form clubs. Terms: two dollars a year, with large reductions to clubs. A specimen copy will be sent free to any one desiring to get up a club. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Decisions in Law.

The following decisions in law have been received by Charles F. Sweet, Esq., Clerk of the Eastern Law District:

PENOBSCOT COUNTY CASES.

Ellen D. Jones vs. Elijah Smith et al. "Judgment for the plaintiff for the amount of the penalty named in the bond, but execution to issue for only one dollar as nominal damages."

Rescript—One of the conditions named in a replevin bond is, that the party shall prosecute the said replevin to final judgment. It will constitute a breach of such bond where the writ in said action has been duly served upon the defendant therein, but has not been entered in Court, and no judgment recovered in the replevin suit. In such case the title of the plaintiff in replevin to the property replevied may be shown in mitigation of damages in an action upon the replevin bond. A replevy bond is given as an indemnity for whatever loss or damage the plaintiff may have suffered. The question of damages, where there has been no judgment in the replevin suit determining the title to the property and the question of property has not been passed upon, is open to the defendant in a suit upon such bond as to what may be shown in mitigation of damages.

Ellen D. Jones vs. Elijah Smith. "Judgment for defendant."

Rescript—The plaintiff as mortgagor had yielded possession to the mortgagee, and afterwards brought a bill in equity and obtained a decree authorizing her to redeem upon the payment of the amount found to be due within three months from the date of the decree. Thereupon, as by the decree, the premises were to be surrendered and a deed was to be executed and delivered to the plaintiff within five days from the time of such payment "conforming to this decree, and therein reciting the decree and in proper terms discharging said mortgages and releasing and freeing said mortgaged premises from any and all incumbrances created or made by said mortgagees," etc. The money was paid within the three months named in the decree. Held, That defendant is not liable in trespass for acts done upon the premises, and while in possession thereof, between the time of the payment of the money and the time when the deed was delivered to the plaintiff, being within the five days named in the decree in which the deed was to be executed and delivered.

Until the execution and delivery of the deed during such time the defendant was in the lawful possession of the premises, and trespass would not lie against him by the mortgagor. As between mortgagor and mortgagee, the mortgage vests the legal title and seizure of the estate in the mortgagee immediately upon delivery of the mortgage.

The gist of trespass to personal property is in the injury to the plaintiff's possession. There must be either title, or possession, or the right to immediate possession, in order to entitle a plaintiff to recover in an action of trespass to personal property.

Scrofula
Is one of the most fatal scourges which afflict mankind. It is often inherited, but may be the result of improper vaccination, mercurial poison, uncleanliness, and various other causes. Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Abscesses, Cancerous Humors, and, in some cases, Emaciation and Consumption, result from a scrofulous condition of the blood. This disease can be cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
I inherited a scrofulous condition of the blood, which caused a derangement of my whole system. After taking less than four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla I am and, for the past year, have not found it necessary to use any medicine whatever. I am now in better health, and stronger, than ever before.—O. A. Willard, 218 Tremont st., Boston, Mass.
I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores for five years; but, after using a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the sores healed, and I have now good health.—Elizabeth Warnock, 54 Appleton street, Lowell, Mass.
Some months ago I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores on my leg. The limb was badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy failed until I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. By taking three bottles of this medicine the sores have been healed, and my health is restored. I am grateful for the good it has done me.—Mrs. Ann O'Brian, 168 Sullivan st., New York. ††

Let the Battle-Flags Alone

The Washington Capital says that Adjutant-General Drum is responsible for the project of surrendering to Southern State Governments the battle-flags of rebellion captured by the Union armies, and that his reason is his desire to "withdraw from the public gaze all mementoes of internecine strife." We did not suppose that three years contact with a Democratic Administration would infect General Drum with that sort of humbug but having already stowed the flags and trophies away out of sight in boxes in the cellar of the War Department, we don't quite see how they are to be more effectually withdrawn from the public gaze," by bringing them forth and handing them over with great parade to the Fitz Hugh Lees and Johnston Joneses of the late Confederacy to be hung up along with the other mementoes of internecine strife" that form the principal adornment of the State Houses in the South.

Such talk is arrant nonsense. Does General Drum propose to "withdraw from the public gaze" the monuments to THOMAS, McPHERSON, FARRAGUT, RAWLINGS, DUPONT and other heroes of the war for the preservation of the Government that now teach their lessons of patriotism in the public grounds of the National Capital? Or would he leave the commemoration of the great contest entirely to the South, where day after day the men of the Confederacy are erecting imposing monuments to glorify the memory of the chieftains of Rebellion?

But aside from all this, we would like to be informed where the Adjutant-General, or the Secretary of War, or the President obtain authority to dispose of or divest the United States Government of the custody of a single tattered remnant of a banner captured from the armed enemies of the Republic by its citizen soldiers and placed in the hands of the Government as a sacred trust.

If the executive authority is to be thus magnified, the President might assume to restore or reimburse the owners for all the property destroyed in crushing the Rebellion also the losses by the emancipation of the slaves.

We denounce the whole performance and entrate our protest against the surrender of a single trophy of National triumph to tickle the already inflated vanity of the men who still cherish more pride in their attempt to destroy the Union than in any thing else.

Beguiling the Mugwumps

[Philadelphia Press.]

In the latest number of Harper's Weekly under the title "Reform in Missouri" an extract is printed from a letter written by the Democratic postmaster of St. Louis to the Missouri Civil Service Reform Association. In it the writer finds civil reform in the highest terms, characterizes it as "splendid" and "views with dread the return to the old methods." The extract is printed with a commendatory introduction and foot note, and the postmaster's definition of the value of the reformed system is declared to be "clear and admirable." No doubt Mr. Curtis and his fellow Mugwumps read the letter with real, solid, old fashioned satisfaction and without the least suspicion that they were being fed on wind while the Democrats devoured the substantial parts of the banquet.

That this is the case, however, has been shown right in the city from whose Democratic postmaster this letter containing such beautiful sentiments emanated. The St. Louis Republican, the leading Democratic organ west of the Mississippi river has been printing despatches from Washington giving an account of the removal of Presidential postmasters and the appointment of Democrats to their places in its bailiwick. It has heretofore given the record for Missouri and Arkansas, and its record for Kansas is as follows:

An examination of the records of the Postal Department shows that the presidential offices in Kansas are quite as generally in the hands of Democrats now as is the case in Missouri and Arkansas. There are altogether 107 presidential postmasters in Kansas, and of this number only eleven are Republicans. Every other presidential postmaster in the whole state of Kansas now holding office has received his commission from President Cleveland.

This showing is an exceptionally good one considering the fact that Kansas has not a single Democratic Senator or Representative in Congress to look after the party in the inspiration of patronage. It is apparent however, that the changes have been made just as rapidly in Kansas as in any of the Democratic States. Taking Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas together, there are only twenty two presidential postmasters in the three States. All this has been done under the policy of President Cleveland without provoking any conflict with the Republican Senate and without alienating the support he received at the last election from the Independent Republicans. That he has succeeded in a little less than two years in practically revolutionizing the control of the executive departments of the country and putting it almost completely in the hands of the Democrats without the slightest strain or disturbance is the best testimony that can be asked as to the policy he initiated in the distribution of patronage.

Out of the 107 Presidential postmasters in the latter State 96 have been handed over to the Democrats, leaving only 11 Republicans in office, and in the three States together only 22 of the Republican Presidential postmasters who had been appointed before Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated now remain.

It should be remembered that these changes have been made by the personal direction of Mr. Cleveland himself. They are all Presidential offices, to which appointments are made by the President alone, and do not include the hundreds of postmasterships in these three States and in which Postmaster General Vilas has probably left scarcely a Republican. But the most suggestive remark of the St. Louis Republican is where it says, after recounting these charges, that "all that has been done under the policy of President Cleveland without alienating the support he received at the last election from the Independent Republicans." The statement is undoubtedly true, and it shows how thoroughly the Democrats understand their ability to beguile the Mugwumps. Mr. Cleveland has fed them on such beautiful sentiments as those expressed in the letter of the St. Louis postmaster, and all the time he has been dealing out offices to his party friends until at least three-fourths of the federal patronage is now in the hands of the Democratic party. A year hence, when the other fourth has been awarded to the same party, there is not the slightest doubt that the Mugwumps will still be feeding on their diet of wind and singing the praises of Cleveland's civil service reform.

Blaine in the West

[From the Wichita (Kansas) Eagle.]

After the delivery of John Sherman's great speech at Springfield, Ill., the reporters of the Globe Democrat were put to work interviewing members as to their choice for president in 1888. Blaine leads the list with forty-six and Sherman follows with nineteen. These men to a certain extent represented the Republicans of Illinois. There was one point developed that we think is true of the country at large. And that was, whether these men were for Blaine or not in very many cases they added, "our people are for Blaine." There may be differences of opinion among politicians as to the advisability of running this or that man for president, because they count the elements necessary to insure success. The fact remains, however, that the instincts of the great masses comprising the Republican party are for James G. Blaine.

[St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald.]

Senator Preston B. Plumb, according to our Topeka correspondent, says that if Mr. Blaine goes into the convention after the nomination for the Presidency, he will probably get it. The chances are that Mr. Blaine will go after the nomination, and we agree with Mr. Plumb that Mr. Blaine will undoubtedly be elected. We of course expect that he will be opposed by the same Mugwumps that opposed him before, but we see no reason to believe that any other Republican could expect to be more successful in winning the votes of that contingency. The Mugwumps have burned their bridges behind them and we can see no possibility of their rejoining their party.

We have taken great pleasure in reading the admirable address delivered by George H. Witherle, Esq., at the dedication of the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument, at Castine on May 30th. Among other excellent things he said:

Since the world began, blood has never been shed for a more just and righteous cause. Not loyalty to some worthless ruler, not greed for military glory, not mad passion for conquest was the motive power of the preservers of the Union. It was desire or peace, permanent and lasting; it was order against anarchy, it was a free democratic republic based on human rights and the Declaration of Independence against an oligarchy whose corner stone was human slavery.

Years have turned on. The men who participated in the stirring duties of the war whether soldiers or citizens with their contemporaries are passing away, going to join those who laid down their lives on the battle field. A new generation is succeeded them who may have learned the events of the past but who too often do not fully enter into or understand its spirit. Who sometimes are even taught, in effect, to look upon the war as a blind, and fanatical but a mere murdering game; a trial of skill and strength for the championship and the belt, between two opposing pugilists.

May this monument, simple, unpretending, standing in this public place, near our schools and churches, be an ideal reminder to the ministers of religion to inculcate lessons of secular knowledge to do their best, each in his sphere, to enter into its spirit to expound it to those under their charge and to keep it always in the fresh minds of the young.

Not a spirit of hatred or bitterness against any men or communities, who however they may have erred, in the past honestly and heartily accept the results of the war the brotherhood and equities of citizenship, but a spirit imbued with that love of nation, which is strength, that obedience to righteous law, which is domestic peace that hatred or oppression and regard for the rights and manhood of all, which is the essence of Christianity—the life of the Republic.

The Boston Journal's Washington correspondent says: "The more the new internal revenue consolidation scheme is examined by experts the more certain does it become that no real economy is to be effected by it, that the pretended economies are simply upon the surface, and that they will use nearly all absorbed by the salaries which it will be necessary to pay for the additional bonded stamp deputies who will have to be appointed in all the affected districts and by the additional fees which will go under the existing law for increased collections to the collectors in all the consolidated districts whose salaries have not already reached the maximum provided by the law."

Why does President Cleveland take so much interest in Jacob Sharp? His personal organ here is doing all that lies in its power to secure the acquittal of the great broker, and the presumption is that it speaks for the Administration in all things. President Cleveland can hardly allow his friends to go out but his sympathies are enlisted on behalf of the indicted "boodlers."—World.

The New York Times denies, in the most emphatic manner that Hon. W. E. Chandler sent to the Times office the morning after the Presidential election in 1876 a despatch to the effect that that paper should claim Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina, at all hazards and through thick and thin.

The Washington Critic says that a large number of crows have taken up their abode in the vicinity of the White House. This will make it very hard for the Democrats who may want to eat crow one of these days.—Tribune.

FROM PORTLAND.

The Friends' Yearly Meeting.

PORTLAND, June 13. At the morning session of the Friends' yearly meeting a proposition was received from the Indiana yearly meeting for a conference of yearly meetings of America, London and Ireland. This was approved and it was voted to send delegates to Indiana next September. Changes were made in the time of holding some of the quarterly meetings in Rhode Island.

At this afternoon session Dr. H. B. Torrey presented the greetings of the Maine Methodist conference. The report of the committee on Foreign Missions was read, giving an encouraging view of their progress and the present state of missionary work.—Syne.

FROM WINTHROP.

Who Shall Have the Little Girl.

WINTHROP, June 12. There is much excitement in this town over the difficulty between Mr. J. Horatio Bates, a citizen here, and his wife, Clara A. The two have lived unhappily together for several years. They had one child, a girl of three summers, which was dearly beloved by both and the only obstacle to their separation for some time. The wife had long suspected that her spouse had contemplated with their offspring and had kept a watchful eye on him for many months. A number of weeks ago he checkmated. Pretending to have an errand in the orchard near by, he took the child with him, and as soon as he was out of sight of the house, fled across the orchard near by and taking a carriage, left for parts unknown. The woman was a plucky representative of her sex and immediately took steps to learn the location of his hiding place. She ascertained that he had gone to Providence, R. I., and securing the services of Detective True, of Portland, proceeded with him to that place early last week. About eight miles out of the city they found at the place where the child was supposed to be, and found her boarding in a family there. The mother, on seeing her girl, grabbed her, and the two reached home as quick as the cars would carry them. Mrs. Bates arrived on Wednesday. The father, as soon as he discovered they took the next train for Winthrop. He, however, at once opened negotiations for a divorce and to decide who should have possession of the child. A motion was pending. Judge Wells gave the parties a hearing at Augusta on Thursday, numerous witnesses being in attendance from this place and a large amount of testimony introduced. The court rendered a decision allowing Mrs. Bates to retain possession of the girl and Mr. Bates to see it occasionally until the question had been settled.

How the drowning occurred is a mystery.

Troops are in hot pursuit.

THE BUBBLE BURST.

Heavy Fall in the Coffee Market.

Several Failures and the Market Panicky.

NEW YORK, June 13. The market opened excited this morning at 120 points below Saturday's close. The market is verging on a panic with rumors of failures which cannot yet be confirmed.

Failure Announced.

The failure of R. G. Arnold & Co., coffee merchants has just been announced. They were caught largely long on the decline. The market has just declined 95 points further and is very active, excited and panicky. More failures are expected to follow. R. G. Arnold was the originator of the Coffee Exchange and its first President. He was formerly of the firm of Arnold, Sturgin & Co., the largest coffee house in the United States.

Another Failure.

The failure of Mackay & Small, prominent coffee brokers of Water street, was announced this afternoon. Small, of this firm, was formerly connected with the large coffee firm of Small Bros. & Co., with houses in New York, Baltimore, Chicago and New Orleans. There is great excitement this afternoon in the Coffee Exchange.

Still Further Failures.

The failure of Norton, Weyl & Boyan, 107 Water street, is also announced.

The failure of Arnold & Co. is supposed to have been chiefly the inability of their Rio house to remit margins in time. The liabilities are stated at above a million dollars. A New York bank is said to be heavily involved.

Another failure was that of W. I. Norton & Co., coffee brokers, 100 Water street; liabilities not more than $20,000. Their business was chiefly done with Baltimore parties.

Late this afternoon December coffee advanced to 17 cents.

A Further Report of the Panic.

The drop of 270 points in June coffee and the heavy decline for other months caused a panic in the Coffee Exchange to-day. A wild confusion prevailed and 112,000 bags of coffee were sold, or twice as many as on any previous day in the history of the Exchange. Three firms suspended in consequence, with liabilities which are expected to exceed $1,000,000. In explanation of the flurry the market is said to have been broken through its own weight, as Arnold & Co., the principal firm involved, kept buying until they dared not unload.

Arnold & Co.'s liabilities are estimated by outsiders at $1,000,000 or over; Mackey, Small & Co., at $200,000, while those of Norton, Weyl & Revan are considered small. The principal break in the market followed Arnold & Co.'s failure. Several firms, including J. C. Donohue & Son and W. H. Crossman & Brothers then combined to prevent a further decline and June coffee rallied 145 points before the close. Arnold & Co. attribute their failure to lack of time to obtain margin from customers in Buenos Ayres and Europe.

CHANDLER AS SENATOR.

NEW YORK, June 13. A Washington despatch to the Tribune says: Great anxiety is shown by Democratic officials in Washington in regard to the Senatorial election in New Hampshire. In the Navy Department are several officials who fervently pray for the defeat of William E. Chandler. All of them are ready and willing to admit that Chandler possesses a thorough knowledge of that department and its needs and therefore their anxiety for his defeat must be inspired by fear that as a member of the United States Senate he would be able to bring out some disagreeable facts in regard to the present administration of naval affairs.

The matter about which there is understood to be great solicitude, is the accounts relating to the construction of the Dolphin and the Bosch cruisers since the Department took possession of it. It is argued that these accounts, especially for the Atlanta, are in great confusion and that nobody seems to know where the credits and liabilities of the assignee and those of the Government begin.

Of course the Navy Department would prefer to settle these and other difficulties without any interference from Chandler in the capacity of United States Senator. If other departments the hope that he will not be elected is freely expressed. The subject seems to be uppermost in their minds for it provokes as much talk as any political incident since the last Presidential election.

NEW YORK.

Shot His Wife and Killed Himself.

NEW YORK, June 13. Stephen Roe, a colored man, this morning fatally shot his wife in the left breast, near the heart, and then shot himself. Finding this wound was not fatal he cut his throat, dying in a few minutes. Poole was thirty-five years old and of jealous disposition. He spent over an hour cleaning his revolver yesterday. His wife was twenty-three.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Dropped Dead While at Work.

ROCHESTER, June 13. Gilbert Chamberlain, a carpenter seventy years of age, dropped dead this afternoon while at work.

Crows Destroying the Young Corn.

CONTOCOOK, June 13. Farmers in this vicinity are suffering another plague of crows pulling young corn, in some cases destroying whole fields which have to be replanted. The recent storm having made the season about two weeks late the present trouble is discouraging.

Serious Result of a Fall.

MANCHESTER, June 13. Clinton J. Parker, a prominent citizen of Bedford, fell from the ladder while hiving a swarm of bees, this evening, sustaining a fracture of the spine, causing paralysis. He cannot recover. His age is fifty-one.

PLAIN TALK.

The Opinion Iowa Veterans Have of President Cleveland.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 12. Gen. Tuttle, whose utterances regarding the President's proposed visit to St. Louis caused considerable comment, is here. At last night's meeting of the local G. A. R. he explained in connection with the matter. A resolution was adopted endorsing his action in declaring that the G. A. R. never did and never would invite a President to attend the national encampment. The following was also adopted:

Resolved, That a proper regard for common decency and for the dignity of the official position he now fills, should have caused Grover Cleveland to see that he cannot expect to be kindly greeted by Union soldiers after his attack upon them, their wives and their children in his malicious vetoes of 119 pension bills, in which with Satanic glee he so grossly insulted every Union soldier, and it would seem to us that he should have sufficient self respect not to attempt to crowd himself before the gaze of those who utterly and unalterably despise him.

Resolved, that if Grover Cleveland and his friends insist upon using the prestige of the Grand Army of the Republic to obtain an audience, that he send a substitute, and if possible, the person who represented him in the army during the war. While we respect the office he fills we must be still be a lower, to say that we have no kind feeling for its present soldier hating occupant.

LABOR MATTERS.

Strike of Nine Spinners.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 13. Between fifty and sixty ring spinners at the Granite Mills struck this noon on account of hard work and low wages.

New Feature in the Coke Region Strike.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 13. A new feature of the strike in the coke region to-day was the action of the owners of the blast furnaces. They sent a committee to a furnace. They told the committee that they would positively refuse to buy more than at 90c. per ton for coke. They would stop their furnaces instead. This place has been operated between two fires. They say that if they should give in to the demands of the strikers they would be ruined. Trouble is looked for.

Debate on the Coercion Bill Renewed.

LONDON, June 13. The House of Commons this evening resumed debate on the coercion bill, taking up the fifth clause, which deals with the proclaiming of districts. Henry Fowler (Liberal), proposed as an amendment that proclamations be made by order of the privy council instead of by the Viceroy. He urged the change. Messrs. Healy, McNeill, Clancey and Dillon (Nationalists), successively supported the amendment.

Mr. Gladstone suggested that members should not speak any more of the short time at their command in futile discussion. It would be better, he said, to employ the time to discuss weightier subjects. Mr. Smith said he was anxious to allow sufficient time for discussing substantial questions and he hoped the opposition would assist the Government in this direction. Mr. Fowler offered to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Dillon protested that he declined to take advice as to what amendments shall be discussed in the miserable period left to the Parnellites to discuss the measure. Mr. Morley was sure Mr. Gladstone had not meant to suggest that the opposition assist in limiting debate in accordance with the government amendment. The question was put to a division and rejected, 235 to 167.

Mr. Doherty moved an amendment that proclamations be issued only on report of Judge of the High Court after local inquiry.

Mr. Shaw Lefevre moved an amendment limiting the authority of voiding in the proclaiming districts, where it might be necessary to prevent crime and outrage. He appealed to the Government to assent to the alteration which, he said, would bring the House in accord with the act of 1882. The Government, he urged, could not accept the proposal, the object of the bill being to punish outrages as well as to prevent the commission of crime.

Two car loads of horses came to this city last Saturday from Montreal for the Megantic Railroad Company. They stayed over Sunday here and were taken up to Greenville yesterday. THE CASE OF THE ROSE INNES. The owners of the bark Innes of Portland, filed at Baltimore for having as second mate an unnaturalized citizen, John Olsen, have appealed to the Secretary of the Treasury. The bark came from Aspinwall with 799 tons of guano, and the fine was fixed at fifty cents for every ton. Collector of the port Groome said that it was a shame that the shipping commissioners had not carefully inquired into the case. Olsen was down on the ship's papers as a native of New York. He acknowledged that he was a Norwegian, and unnaturalized.

THE MEGANTIC RAILROAD.

The Laborers Neither Abused nor Swindled.

A correspondent of the Portland Press writing from Calais says:

Of the seventy-five laborers hired in Calais to work on the Megantic railroad, over half, or all who have any money, have returned, while the balance are making their way home on foot. An agent is in Lewiston seeking French Canadian labor. Many destitute men who are returning, were taken care of last week by the city of Bangor and aided by charitable citizens.

The above despatch together with others, detailing the hardships and magnifying the ill-treatment endured by the workmen employed on the Megantic road in Northern Maine has been given a wide publicity, and has been the object of considerable comment in this vicinity.

The firm of Maxwell & Thompson, of St. Stephen, contractors, have in charge a large section of the new road near Moosehead Lake, and it is under them that the Calais laborers are working. Mr. G. H. Maxwell was seen this morning by a Press representative, and questioned in regard to the veracity of the story. He pronounced it to be utterly untrue. Of the number of men hired by the firm all age at work but eight, who skipped last week, and concerning whose reliability doubts were entertained at the time of their engagement, otherwise the crew is doing well and the men are entirely satisfied with their work and treatment. The labor of constructing a railroad line through the almost unexplored wilderness is necessarily arduous, but not more so than that to which men who have lived in the woods all their lives have been accustomed.

"Of course," Mr. Maxwell objected, "hotel bred fellows will get their fingers blistered and then complain bitterly when they find they have not a soft job and big wages, but the men working for us have the best of accommodations, regular hours and regular pay, and the best food that can be procured in Bangor. No laborers were ever treated better than they are. These stories of wholesale desertion and destitution have no foundation whatever except in the minds of newspaper correspondents."

Mr. Maxwell believed that these tales of woe originated in a feeling of hostility to the Canadian Pacific Company, and that had an American corporation been constructing the road nothing of the sort would have ever been said concerning its operations.

Children's Day at Kenduskeag.

Our correspondent writes: Children's Day at Kenduskeag was observed in a manner pleasing to all. On Saturday afternoon could be seen old and young wending their way towards the Union church bearing pots of flowers and plants of all kinds. The question was asked by some what they were doing with those plants. The answer was that it was Children's Day to-morrow. On Sunday morning could be seen carried through the streets cages of canary birds and the result was that soon the people gathered at the Union church and, behold their surprise on entering to see the rostrum and pulpit profusely decorated with plants, flowers and ferns of all kinds as the beautiful notes of birds came to their ears from ten cages of songsters suspended in different parts of the church, each apparently trying not to be outdone by its neighbor in warbling forth its song. On the front of the pulpit was an anchor of flowers that was very beautiful. Soon the organ struck up and as the birds sang all were delighted. Prayer was offered and singing followed by a choir of young ladies and gentlemen composed of the following voices: Mr. F. E. Nason, Bert Nason, Ernest Harvey, Miss Edna Harvey, Miss Laura North, Miss Emma Hall, with Miss Nellie F. Harvey at the organ, and at the same time the feathered songsters warbled forth their songs as if to say, "beat me if you can." Rev. L. L. Hobbs then preached a very instructive and interesting sermon from Psalms 40:17, Prov. 4:11; the first for the children, the latter for the parents. The choir was composed of eight little girls who sang beautifully. In the afternoon services were held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms and in the evening a children's service at the church. The day was well spent, being devoted to the advancement and instruction of the youth of the town.

School Savings-Banks.

WHAT THEY TEACH.

Dr Johnson has said of economy that "it is the parent of integrity, of liberty, and of ease, and the beauteous sister of temperance of cheerfulness, and of health" The truth thus made dear of him to virtues and qualities peculiarly honored in America is, I fear, not held in very high esteem by us, although we loudly deplore our habit of waste It is true that within the past few years such studies as "political," "social" and even "domestic" economy have entered more generally into the curriculum of our high-schools and colleges and that innumerable pamphlets, brochures, and papers on "economic" topics have been published and distributed by associations interested in the social sciences, it is also evident that the necessity for engrafting manual training on our public school system is being rapidly accepted by educators throughout the country The mayor of New York last year appointed two women as members of the School Board with the admitted purpose of securing the benefit of their broad views and special knowledge of the needs and possibilities of industrial training, and Philadelphia has this last month put a woman (Miss Bodly, Dean of the Woman's Medical College) on her School Board in response to the same kind of pressure We hear of every State in the Union of the increase of kindergartens, cooking schools, etc so that the time seems ripe for presenting the claims of a kind of instruction the neglect of which in the past explains many of the disastrous results so often laid at the door of our public schools, and whose incorporation in their course is so easy

Penny savings banks have been connected with many public schools and the deposit drill made a part of the weekly exercises

The object of school banks is not large savings and splendid aggregates, but moral training, they teach children self control, economy, and generosity, and in the way such lessons can alone be learnt, by practicing them No amount of oral instruction, blackboard illustrations or copy book maxims, aimed at the calculation of thrift as a means of success in life, make half as deep an impression on a child as a session's experience with a bank book Dissect this practical instruction each time a penny is saved and deposited the child zero to an act of self control, the immediate—often greedy—pleasure is foregone for some future benefit, gradually the idea of economy, drawn on the growing mind and a sense of order and management is developed, the power to assort and dispense takes the place of passion to spend, and finally, when the first withdrawal is made, a feeling of independence is experienced perfectly impossible to the child who never has a penny laid by to use for either personal pleasure or generous help to others Who can deny, ye critics, with nothing to give what child with a few dimes or pennies a week of its own spent promptly at the nearest candy shop or peanut stand, can comprehend from words the marvelous power of growth possessed by a savings bank book How should we expect children brought up amidst improvidence, waste and extravagance—all national faults—to develop, without practical prudence, thrift and industious spending

It has been objected that this plan of teaching children to save carefully and spend wisely will cultivate the worst of human faults—selfishness—with desire, the trustful, generous unreflecting qualities of childhood, that we may curtail the list of spendthrifts and thieves, but that we'll train up a host of misers and Scrooges The answer to such arguments is that every good thing is open to abuse, but should we therefore prevent the child from praying to God for fear of his becoming a bigot? must we prevent the little girl from wishing to be loved for fear of her becoming a coquette? A proper of the self-control taught by school banks, it is worth mentioning that in Japan the government has lately arranged to take on deposit, in connection with their postal savings-banks very small sums from school children and students so as to discourage the enormous waste on sweetmeats which has grown to be a matter of national concern An English mother admitted to Miss Lambert that since her children had joined the school banks and had no money left for the sweet shop, they did not need nearly so much medicine!

How few parents train their children to the luxury of giving; yet what more ennobling indulgence! and school banks bring this luxury within the reach of the poorest child On a few years since the poor school children of Bordeaux gave $2000 out of their school bank savings to sufferers from a flood in southern France What band of American children can match such an act of generosity? They might have the impulse they have not the economic pennies

M Laurent, of Orient gives an instance of the kind of self-denial and generosity rendered possible by this system A young girl well known to him as a school bank depositor had saved largely in preparation for her marriage when her father died, without hesitation she drew out all her savings to meet family misfortunes the willingness might have existed, but not a penny in hand, were it not for the school bank

If we admit—and who will deny it?—that on the practical acquirement of thrift is a part of the public schooling of our children depend in a great measure the independence, dignity, and happiness of their after lives, as well as the well-being in no small measure of the country, we must place object lesson in frugality, as school banks might be called, at least on an equal footing with singing, drawing, and calisthenics, all three being pushed as aids to character training and future self-support What is the use of our enormous expenditures for prisons, almshouses, reformatories, if we cont nue blindly to turn out fresh relays of candidates for their pitiful care?

Think you the lessons end with the child at school? No more than the kindergarten and kitchen garden do Philanthropists in ever-increasing numbers acknowledge that preventive work is to be preventive must be done amongst the children, they have yet to learn that there is no more hopeful way to reach the degraded adults than by and through their children "The little lass" when she brings her bank-book home on a Friday night may save the Saturday's wage, which has so often gone to the dram-shop The boy who draws his accumulated pennies to buy a pair of shoes may mercifully shame a selfish parent, and teach an unexpensive lesson of industry and self-denial.

If the love of money is the root of all evil, it is none the less true that the wise use of money is the source of national prosperity and family peace. Some one has said, in teaching a boy you are training a man, but in teaching a girl you are training up a family. How many miserable homes are due to ignorant extravagance on the part of the wives and mothers, who, had they been taught the use and rightful power of money, would have successfully striven after economy, which among the Greeks simply meant the due management of the household No mother need fear that a practical knowledge of the advantages of saving, and the power to be generous which in most lives it alone confers, will ever make a daughter less womanly or wifely, for "economy can rise to the height of a sacrament when this aim is grand"—Catherine Bakewin in Harper's Bazar

The cabbage fly which deposits its eggs on the stems of young cabbage plants is often very troublesome One of the best remedies proposed is to scatter slacked lime or coal dust around the stems of each plant

No farm product of equal value is more unsatisfactory to hold for a rise than butter Its price, when newly made, is nearly always the best It is subject to greater deterioration than any other product, and, no matter how carefully protected, must suffer some in comparison with that which is freshly made The old-fashioned dairy butter made in June used to be good for a twelvemonth if packed in sweet crocks and covered with salt brine to exclude any odors There is little such butter now That made by creamery process is first-class while fresh, but lacks keeping qualities As nearly all enterprising dairymen have creameries, there is less really good butter made than milk set in the old fashioned way than formerly

Directions for making the bread which was so favorably noticed at a meeting of the Worcester (Mass) grange last winter have been kindly given by those exhibiting the loaves, for the benefit of other bread makers White Bread—I mixed the bread which I exhibited at the grange in the morning about eight o'clock, and had it baked in the afternoon before five o'clock, it being all ready for the oven by four in cold weather I have the flour thoroughly warmed before mixing Of course there is great difference in the flour used in order to have good bread we must have good flour Good bread cannot be made from poor flour, and on the other hand, good bread may be made from the best quality of poor yeast is used, if the dough is kept warm or if not properly kneaded and baked A little care and experience needed throughout Take one quart of milk scalded with a teaspoonful of butter and when cool, add a half cake compressed yeast, two tablespoonfuls of white sugar, one teaspoon salt, and a little soda dissolved in half cup of warm water Mix four until stiff enough to handle on the moulding board Then give it a good enough kneading and put it in a covered jar in a warm place to rise till light Put it down with the hand or cut it with a knife and let it rise again once or twice Then turn it out on the moulding board and shape it into loaves, set it in a warm place again till ready for the oven—Mrs Ernst W

BOILS FOR TEA Two cups of sweet milk, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one-half cake compressed yeast mix and set to rise at half past nine in the forenoon One hour before tea, roll and let rise again, cut with a large cutter, spread melted butter on top and fold one half over the dough should be one-half inch thick when cut out Scald the milk and when it is luke warm stir in flour as long as you can stir with a spoon then set in a warm place and by two o'clock it will be ready to stir down, then set in a cool place, stirring it down as it rises up, until time to mould A pail will move in best to make in

FRIED BROWN BREAD Three cups of Indian meal, three cups of rye meal, one-half cup of sour milk, one-half cup of molasses, three and a half cups of warm water one teaspoonful of soda Bake covered closely, one hour and a half in a moderate oven In making brown bread salt the salt and soda into the meal The secret of making good steamed brown bread is to keep the water boiling evenly all the time Never add cold water to the water in which the bread is being steamed as it will surely make the bread fall

I want to tell you in a few words how I got rid of the nightmare of my life

I once resided for several years in the Thumb District of Michigan where I contracted malarial poison, which in the course of time so undermined my vigorous constitution enabled me to resist for a time the encroachments of the disease but continued exposure to the early morning fogs and to the night damps so fastened the disease upon me that I almost despaired of getting completely rid of it For it eventually developed into a chronic type of intermittent malarial fever with all its distressing symptoms This continued for eight years In this long period of course I experienced all the well known peculiarities of many successive attacks the chill the fever the disturbance of the stomach and all the functions of digestion the heavy headaches the painful limbs and back and the characteristic sensitiveness to changes in the weather which impart to the chronic sufferer from malaria something of the powers of a barometer My appetite came and went but always I had no natural relish Sometimes I had a morbid craving for food and then for days I was unable to tolerate the most tempting and delicate dishes until from a lack of proper nourishment I was transformed from a vigorous active man into a weak haggard one being to whom the very thought of exertion was unweakening In addition to such misery I was easily the victim of indigestion

As for medical treatment all was done that apparently could be done I tried all the accepted remedies but all the benefit I derived was more than transient relief My experience was as some that preceded it a true tale but one which I will not detail for those who habitually depend upon it It is for or never works a critical cure I often tried patiently perfectly useless results which are in themselves diseases

Now I come to the real point and to the end of my story In the summer of 1886 I first heard of Kaskine I had struck with its being called the cure for malaria and the high claims made for it I didn't believe a syllable of them Neither would you—in my place Still there was a friend and a clergyman and I fully described to him in a letter my case and asked his advice This clergyman was a sufferer from malaria for years and knew what I was up against He said he was cured by Kaskine and that one bottle would do the job I didn't believe it Still I thought I'd try it To my astonishment and gratification I soon began to improve Clearly I was getting better As I continued with Kaskine I seemed to feel the malaria going out of me and health coming back It was a genuine scientific healing—not one possible to temporarily disguising another The article with which my system was charged was presently expelled and my stiffened joints became pliant as before I was ever in the Michigan fogs and miasmas The indigestion also disappeared my bowels grew regular my head clear, my nerves steady and restful sleep returned I am now permanently well have never had any relapse and of malaria—nor any sign of it Results so real cannot be disputed and I may fairly attribute them to Kaskine because after beginning with it I took no other medicine
